Founder & President, Crime Control Defence Organization (CCDO)

“I don’t just fight for justice—I fight for every woman who has been told she can’t.”

I am Shabnam, the proud Founder and President of the Crime Control Defence Organization (CCDO)—a grassroots NGO on a mission to bring justice, dignity, and empowerment to those society too often ignores.

At CCDO, we stand with survivors of rape and acid attacks, transgender individuals, sex workers, and victims of domestic violence. We don’t offer charity—we offer strength, support, and the tools to reclaim life with courage and confidence.

My journey into social activism began not in a classroom, but at home. I was raised by a mother who, despite being physically handicapped, was the strongest woman I’ve ever known. She taught me and my five siblings to rise above limitations, believe in the power of education, and always fight for what’s right—even when no one else does.

Inspired by her resilience, I excelled academically and proudly represented India at the national level in sports, earning a medal for the country and subsequently contributed as a skilled lawn tennis coach. But my true calling came from the real-life struggles.

I witnessed around me—stories of injustice, silence, and pain that could not be ignored.

And so, CCDO was founded—with a mission rooted in justice and resilience.

To be a voice for the voiceless, a hand to hold during recovery, and a platform where survivors don’t just survive—they rise.

Over the years, we’ve helped hundreds of women and marginalized individuals rebuild their lives—providing legal aid, rehabilitation, vocational training, and emotional support. Each success story is a step closer to the India we dream of: safe, just, and inclusive.

My vision is bold yet simple:

- No survivor left behind
- Every woman empowered
- A future where justice isn’t a privilege—but a right

If you believe in this vision, I invite you to stand with us—because real change begins when we stand together

About Us

The Crime Control Defence Organization (CCDO) is a dedicated non-governmental organization committed to social justice, with a sharp focus on combating crimes such as acid attacks, rape, and domestic violence. Operating across India, CCDO stands as a pillar of support for survivors—working not only to ease their physical and emotional suffering but also to help them reclaim their self-worth and build a dignified future.

We believe that justice, respect, and opportunity should be accessible to all. That's why our work goes beyond crisis response—we empower survivors with the tools, skills, and legal resources they need to live independently and confidently.

In collaboration with Punjab National Bank, computers were distributed to women to facilitate skill development and empower them towards self-reliance.

Trip to Kargil with specially abled people

Our Core Initiatives

- Self-Defence and Investigation:

We offer specialised self-defence training programs for women, designed to empower them with the skills and confidence to protect themselves in difficult situations and effectively seek assistance from authorities when necessary. In addition, we conduct comprehensive investigations aimed at uncovering the underlying causes of criminal activities, ensuring that the truth is thoroughly revealed.

- Legal Aid & Advocacy:

We provide victims with direct access to legal assistance and tirelessly work to ensure that justice is served.

- Support for Families:

Families of survivors are given opportunities to gain skills and rebuild their lives with dignity and purpose.

- Empowerment Programs:

From employment training to mental health support, we guide women, children, and differently-abled individuals towards a brighter, self-reliant future.

Met and assist acid attack victims

Initiated milk distribution drives for underprivileged communities in Delhi during the first wave of COVID-19

He changed my face, not my heart.
He threw acid on my face, not on my dreams.

Data

It is learnt that the conviction rate for acid violence is one of the lowest - less than 5 percent - according to activists who work closely with victims.

Leadership with Vision

Shabnam Khan, founder and president of CCDO, has been at the forefront of social reform in Delhi and neighboring regions for several years. Her unwavering commitment to justice extends across communities, including survivors of rape and acid attacks, transgender individuals, sex workers, and victims of domestic abuse.

Actively distributed milk and essential food supplies to needy individuals during the height of the COVID-19 crisis.

Organized the distribution of COVID-19 protection kits to children with special needs during a Children's Day celebration at their school.

Visited rehabilitation centre to assist organization

Organised Health Checkup Camp at Sangam Vihar

Assisted needy women at Hospital AIIMS during treatment of her injured husband

Through her visionary leadership, hundreds of survivors have been transformed into confident, self-sufficient individuals. Shabnam's mission is bold yet simple: to eliminate crime, uphold the law, and restore hope to those society often overlooks. Her dream is a safer, more just India—where no survivor is left behind, and every individual has the chance to live with pride and purpose.

Supported and rode alongside disabled individuals from Delhi to Kargil in a campaign to raise awareness and promote equal opportunity.

Participated in a patriotic ride on Independence Day at India Gate, dedicated to showing appreciation for the armed forces

Public Appeal

CCDO urges individuals and organizations to contribute generously to its mission. Your donations can transform lives, turning despair into hope and empowering survivors to dream again. Together, we can create a safer, more compassionate society free from such atrocities. Join hands with CCDO to make a difference.
